Who Runs the World?

In 2009, the Penn State Small Business Development Center signed a partnership with the state wide EnterpriseWorks, an annual event showcasing the growth of entrepreneurial activities. By 2013, Penn State's GEW included 40 events and attracted 46 attendees. This year, Penn State's GEW has grown to 78 events with 5,000 students, faculty, staff and community members that participate, earning them a spot as the number one ranked partner for GEW in the United States.

GEW has evolved into a Penn State wide event, offering students from University Park and at least five Commonwealth campuses an engaging week of entrepreneurial collaboration, mentoring, innovation and engagement coupled with an exciting global component for Penn State students.

"Inside everyone there is some element of an 'entrepreneurial spirit' just waiting to show up," says Linda Bateman, Senior Business Consultant of GEW.

The 2015 annual Women's Entrepreneurship Week, sponsored by the Pennsylvania women's organizations, will be held on November 18 from 11:30 am to 1 pm at the State College Municipal Building, located at 24 South Allen Street, Community Room, second floor.

Entrepreneur vs. Intrepreneur: Which One Are You?

1. What is your normal role in a group-oriented project?
   A. Team Leader
   B. Group Member

2. How do you best manage a workload?
   A. I handle it myself. It's best if I can strategize on my own and execute.
   B. I gather other group members' opinions first, then execute.

3. How much of a risk-taker are you?
   A. Bring on the challenge!
   B. I'd rather talk it out with others, so the probability is hard to consider as a team.

4. How do you handle stress?
   A. I am energized when people count on me for ideas.
   B. I'm not good with all the pressure on me.

5. Which character is most likely your spirit animal from The Diesel Woods Puddles?
   A. Miranda Priestly
   B. Andrau Sachs

Krista Krebs
major: BIS minor: film year: senior

Olivia Lewis
major: RPTM minor: business year: senior

Victoria Babb
major: marketing minor: entrepreneurship year: senior

Krista Krebs
Together, with National University of Singapore student Aiyakorn Tung, Krebs created AngelAlert, an SOS button application that helps you send your current location in text to a contact in your phone with just the tap of a finger. In March 2014, AngelAlert ranked thirteenth at the International Women's Day Hackathon. Although not yet available in the Google Play store, AngelAlert will be launching later this fall.

Kialedahcane
StatenHITWays.com/enter

Babb works with Limahala, the only student entrepreneurship club/community on campus that supports GEW through promotion and networking opportunities for students. She plans to continue her goal of working for a local food agency in order to learn from her experience and later become a full-fledged entrepreneur herself.

I consider myself an entrepreneur to someone who has the mindset of solving problems for people and having an understanding/chain to roll out the steps to solve the problem. GEW makes sure that we are committed to people who are naturally entrepreneurial-minded but don't see themselves as such first.

Source: org